Raider Review

By Jennifer Inge

Have you ever wondered where all the money parents give their children for school goes? Many people have wondered and want some answers.

Each year at registration time, students have many different fees. One such fee is the class fee which goes into the different class treasuries and is used to pay for the prom, the senior play and expenses for graduation. The library-and-supplies fee is another, used for repairing and buying new books for the library. The SCA fees go directly into the organization's treasury to be used for various projects.

Over the past years, profits from school pictures have gone to the yearbook staff to help them produce the yearbook; however, this year only part of the money will go to the yearbook and the rest will go into the general office fund.

Well, what is the general office fund?

According to Mr. Armentrout, ACHS principal, "the fund covers the operation of an office such as paper and telephone expenses, and it also covers instructional requests from the different classes."

Instructional requests are the requests by teachers of classes who do not receive county allotments for materials they need for their classes. The vocational department receives money from student fees and also county allotments for the purchase of needed equipment and materials.

The school system may also apply for federal grants for special projects. One such grant was given for the Title IV-C guidance program in which two guidance counselors were added at the middle and high schools.

Money is a big part of running a school system. It is used every day for many different things.

Jubilee!

The Bible and Daily Living
By WILLIAM L. TRIMYER
JUBILEE
Lesson for October 24, 1982
Bible Study Passage: Leviticus 25
INFRODUCTION

Proclaiming liberty is a full-time job for the Church. There are numerous groups of persons who are not truly free. When Abraham Lincoln freed the slaves this did not free everyone. Many people feel imprisoned by our system of government and by the attitude of the Church.

While the Church may engage in vocal and actual emancipation for certain persons, there are still freedom issues in which the Church's voice is strangely silent.

No one is free until everyone is free! There are times when special interest groups clamor for freedom among themselves to the exclusion of others. Freedom does not come cheap nor easy. The history of our nation gives testimony to this very fact. Many lives have been lost and lands taken in the name of freedom.

On a personal level, we can proclaim liberty through our words and deeds. And isn't this where freedom begins? Unless we proclaim liberty through our personal efforts at home and in the community, how will freedom be felt among the masses.

THE BOOK OF LAW(Lev. 25:1-7)

The Book of Leviticus has not been a favorite stamping ground of Bible students. Because it does not follow the trackings of a novel with a plot, we tend to ignore this valuable literature. Leviticus must be read with the idea that one's worship stance and daily conduct must be compatible.

It is interesting that God instructs his people to claim a "sabbath of rest" for the land. Even the land was to rest from the heavy demands of planting, cultivating and harvesting. Here in the Midwest, the prairie lands are worked with no rest at all. The chemicals are poured on and the winds carry off the precious top soil each new Spring.

The Lord also instructed his people to share the produce of their land with friends and neighbors. The paramount issue behind such procedures was the authority of God over the land. God proclaimed himself as owner and the people were stewards of God's good gift.

A YEAR OF JUBILEE (Lev. 25:7-24)

Built into the Hebraic tradition was the idea of jubilee when every fifty years on the Day of Atonement a trumpet would sound proclaiming liberty and restoration for all who had suffered loss.

Israel's former release from captivity implied that they would set at liberty those who were indebted to them. In other words, the Israelites were to forgive all debts owed to them on the fiftieth year. "Ye shall return every man unto his possession, and ye shall return every man unto his family." What a feeling of release it must have been to be freed of one's debts!

But why wait fifty years? Well, we don't have to wait fifty years to practice forgiveness. We can forgive one another freely through daily acceptance and acts of love.

WHAT ABOUT THE POOR? (Lev 25:25-28, 35-43)

Under the system of law and grace that God established, no one should serve as another's slave. One might offer services in return for proper payment, yet this was to be a temporary arrangement. Unfortunately, not everyone is aware of the Old and New Testaments call to proclaim liberty throughout the land. The Church has an ongoing mission to set liberty those who are oppressed.
